

One of the benefits of this closer readjustment of scientific method to nature has been to show us something of the damage which dichotomous ways of thinking have done to our knowledge of God, and not least to our knowledge of God in Jesus Christ. Their effect has been to detach Jesus Christ from God, to detach Jesus Christ from Israel, and to detach Christianity from Christ Himself. Now when that sort of thing happens, the very essence of the Christian Gospel is at stake - Thomas Torrance

One of the most futile things that can happen is the reduction of spirit to externality and the replacement of the incarnated Christ with religion. Jesus never meant to share religion with us. He is in us by the Spirit to be Himself in us.
